Manufacturer Notice:

Please note: The recommendation for the use of our products are based on tests believed to be reliable. However we do not guarantee the results to be obtained by others under different conditions. In the case of determining whether the flakes can be used for their intended application, the necessary testing or tests shall be carried out by the Product User Producers. For more specific matters and for the overall migration testing to be carried out, it is the responsibility of the Product User Producers to determine the sufficient simulant and testing time and temperature relevant for the intended use of the End Product. End Product Producers who associate the final Finished Product with food, must verify whether the organoleptic characteristics of packaged food have not changed
